

Department of Animal Science

Examining Committee for MS Degree

Purpose: Graduate Studies requires that MS students pass a final examination before graduation. This exam must be administered by at least three graduate faculty. The Animal Science Department recognizes that early identification of this committee's membership can aid student preparation for the exam and provide useful guidance during development of the MS program. Current Animal Science graduate policy indicates that MS students should identify two UNL faculty in addition to the major advisor willing to serve on the examining committee. This form must be signed and submitted concurrent with the Memorandum of Courses.
